TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Indiana was organized as a territory in 1800 and was admitted to the Union as the nineteenth state in December, 1816. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 2,930,390, which represents an increase of 229,514, or 8.5 per cent, over the 1910 figure.

During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Indiana from 1800 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Indiana has 92 counties, of which 28 show increases and 64 decreases as compared with 1910. (See Table 1.)

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 36,045 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 81.3 (see Table 1), as against 74.9 in 1910 and 70.1 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the Indiana counties are the townships, which number 1,017. There are also 490 secondary divisions, comprising 98 cities and 392 towns. Each of 14 cities and 24 towns comprises parts of 2 or more townships. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Indiana has 98 cities, of which Indianapolis, with a population of 314,194, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The summary on the following page shows, for each city having 25,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade.

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Indiana living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 34.3 per cent in 1900 to 42.4 per cent in 1910 and to 50.6 per cent in 1920.
